

PROTECTION ORDER INFORMATION - HARASSMENT

A harassment protection order is a court order issued to a victim who has been harassed, pursuant to Neb. Rev. Stat. § 28-311.09 et seq.

In order to qualify for a harassment protection order:

- the petition shall state the events and dates of acts constituting the alleged harassment. This must include the most recent and most severe incident(s).
- the petitioner must show that the respondent has engaged in a knowing and willful course of conduct directed at the petitioner which seriously terrifies, threatens, or intimidates the petitioner and which serves no legitimate purpose.
  - A course of conduct is defined as a pattern of conduct composed of a series of acts over a period of time, however short, evidencing a continuity of purpose, including a series of acts of following, detaining, restraining the personal liberty of, or stalking, telephoning, contacting, or otherwise communicating with the petitioner.

A protection order may prohibit the respondent from:

- imposing any restraint upon the petitioner or family or household member, or liberty of the petitioner,
- harassing, threatening, assaulting, molesting, attacking, or otherwise disturbing the peace of the petitioner,
- telephoning, contacting, or otherwise communicating with the petitioner.

Once the protection order petition is granted, it may not be withdrawn except upon order of the court.

The protection order shall be effective for one year unless otherwise modified by the court.

A court, on its own motion or at the request of the petitioner, may treat a petition for a harassment protection order as a request for a sexual assault protection order or domestic abuse protection order, if it appears from the facts in the petition, affidavit and evidence presented at a show-cause hearing that such other protection order is more appropriate.
